

Developing Leadership Skills

Location: 95 St Clair Avenue West, Suite 1103, Toronto
Session: 8:30am to 4:30pm

A practical one-day course to gain the ability to persuade and inspire people and teams to think, feel, behave and perform more effectively

Instructor:

Kenny Solway

About the course:

This program is designed to enable leaders to recognize the differences between being a manager and a leader and focuses on the skills, knowledge and mindset to change their performance and drive business impact. This hands-on, practical program profiles the dynamics of high performing teams and the characteristics of leaders who build and sustain them. Participants will enhance their face to face communication skills in order to persuade, motivate, delegate and inspire their teams to take action through change and achieve business goals. The one on one feedback and group discussions will reinforce your newly acquired skills.

About our Presenter: Kenny Solway

Kenny's area of expertise come from 20 years within the advertising communications industry, specifically in the areas of helping clients improve their sales process, presentations, pitches, negotiations and strategic account management. He consults with clients on how to best approach their audiences in order to gain maximum impact.

Kenny spent the last nine years running his own communications agency, which specialized in creating, selling and implementing marketing campaigns for clients.

Click here to download the course registration form.

For further information, please contact:

Davina Wong at 416-964-3805 ext 1007 / dwong@ACAweb.ca